From faculty minutes

Aug. 22, 1799

Henry Frey, Jr. Henry Schenck and Walter Van Vechten were charged with drinking to excess and riotous conduct at the house of Simeon Goodman sometime in the month of July.

They acknowledged thir having fallen into disorderly company and having in some degree drunk to excess. They also expressed their sorrow for their misconduct and promised to be more curcumspect in futre. The faculty considering the former exemplary conduct of these students and their penitence on the present occasion, agreed that they receive no greater punishment than private admonition.

July 23, 1800

A charge was brought before the faculty, against Henry Schenk, James Van Schoenhoven and Richard DeCantillon for spending the night of the 15th inst. at Mr. Simeon Goodman's tavern, riotously pulling down a butcher's sign and fixing it up against the dooryard of one of the faculty and at the same time putting a post and rails against his door. Henry Schenk was first cited and....informed the faculty...that it was proposed by Hudson to take a walk - they went as far as Mr. Yate's where by Hudson's proposal they put some rails against his door. From thence they went to Douglass's house and took down his butcher's sign - which was done by Hudson alone - and then carried to Mr. Yate's house.....

Note: a public confession and apology was the outcome of this matter. See faculty minutes.

Sept. 9, 1800 Two applications were also brought forward from Schenk & Haight for dismission from college. ....A question was brought what kind of a dismission those students should have, who have expressed their disaffection to the faculty by signing the petitions handed into the Trustees. The Faculty resolved that a faithful account be given in certificates given to students in every instance.
