

An Oration delivered in the Dutch Church, in the city of Schenectady, on the Fourth of July, 1801, before a crowded audience.

Submitted to the public, by the Adelpic Society, composed of a part of the students of Union College, of which the author was a member.

Printed by C. R. & G. Webster at their Bookstore, corner of State and Pearl Sts., 1801.

14 pp. 21 cm.

(A copy is in the State Library at Albany, N.Y.)

CLASS OF 1803

GIDEON STARR

Son of Benajah (and first wife, name unknown) of Schenectady.

Died at Schenectady, N. Y., aged 21, while a member of the Senior Class of Union College.

FROM History of the Starr Family p. 372
Burgis Pratt Starr
Case, Lockwood & Brainard Co.
Hartford, Conn.
1879.

GIDEON STARR 1803

A student of Union College who died before graduating.

Prof. Pearson's Scrap Book p. 301

GIDEON STARR, non-graduate of 1805, of Conn., was a member of the Adelpheids Society.
He died in 1801.
Adelphic Catalogue 1830

To the Public

An Oration delivered in the Dutch Church, in the city of Schenectady, on the Fourth of July, 1801, before a crowded audience.

Printed by C. R. and G. Webster at their Bookstore, corner of State and Pearl streets, Albany, N.Y. 1801. 14 pages 21 cm.

The following Pages are submitted to the Public, by the Adelpic Society, composed of a part of the students of Union College, of which the Brother was a member. Gideon Starr, of the City of Schenectady, was a Fellow of the Philosophical Class in Union College....a youth of 20 years of age, of fair prospects, and a promising to be a useful member of the community...But Death, the last enemy of man, stopped him in his useful career to fame and usefulness, and has consigned him to the silent tomb.

The following oration was delivered by the Author, to a crowded Audience, on the 4th day of July, about three weeks before his death.

Esteem, and the tenderest affection, for a deceased Brother and Fellow Student, have influenced the Society to bring into public view a juvenile Production, which the modesty of the Author would have forbidden.

Schenectady, Union College
August 11, 1801.

Gideon Starr 1803

Gideon Starr 1803