November 9, 1870, son of James Bennet and Alice Leonora Stiles, his wife, and is descended from one of the earliest families on Long Island, the settlement there dating to the time of the colony. Hiram Bennet, of whom William S. Bennet is a descendant of the sixth generation, was a farmer in New Jersey, not far from the New York line, and from him have come the Bennets of Orange county.

Mr. Bennet acquired his earlier education in the public schools and the high school of Port Jervis, and was graduated from the latter in 1889. He began the study of law with Wilton Bennet, of Port Jervis, and continued it through Albany Law School, from which he graduated in 1892 with the degree of LL.B. On the 12th of May of the same year he was admitted to practice, and in March of the following year he located in New York City and has since been actively identified with the professional life of the metropolitan district; and while he has been a well known figure in law circles more than ten years, he is equally well known in the political history of the state and city and in the councils of the Republican party. In 1892 and 1893 he was official reporter of the Board of Supervisors of Orange county. In 1901 and 1902 he represented the twenty-first district in the state assembly, and on June 6, 1903, he was appointed by Mayor Low a justice of the Municipal Court of New York City, serving until December 31, 1903. In 1904 he was elected representative in congress from the Seventeenth district of New York State.

Since 1903 Mr. Bennet has been counsel for the codification committee of the New York Board of Aldermen. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association, the New York County Republican Committee, first vice-president of the West Side Republican Club, member and president of the Delta Chi Club of New York City and member and elder of the Fourth Presbyterian church. He married, June 30, 1896, Gertrude Witschief, of Port Jervis, by whom he has four children: Augustus Witschief, Sarah Alice, Mary Florence and Edna Grace Bennet.
