Dear Brook, January 13th, 1872. Monday Evening.

Many things I have the first moment will express my voyage to New York and hope to return back again. As I set forward to East, it was very dark. I saw a few stars. I finally landed in the morning. From there I set out East. From there I set South to begin my journey. I needed to mention every little circumstance that occurred to me. It will fill a large volume to enumerate them. I shall only mention that when I came in my mind to write along the river, we noticed we got a verse where we took a small track. One day, we got down to the river. We can see some houses on the bank. We walked to the river, the houses, and some other places. We also went north to some places.

By the way, I have a few friends here. We met them on my visit to the river. I am sure everyone would enjoy the story. I met a group of people who are from the same place. They are a high ledge. The scenery is very beautiful. The sky is a beautiful shade. The river is clear and calm. The scenery is beautiful. We met one man on the river. He is a man of the LED. We met another man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. We met one man on the river. Dear Sir,

I have been in the city of Philadelphia for some time, and have had the opportunity of visiting the Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed. It is a most magnificent building, and I was particularly interested in seeing the Hall of Records, where the original copies of the Declaration and the Constitution of the United States are kept.

Yesterday, I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. John Adams, one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. He was very kind and shared with me some of his experiences during the Revolutionary War. He spoke about the importance of liberty and the need for a strong government.

I have also visited the Liberty Bell, which is a symbol of American freedom. It was a very moving experience to see this historic landmark.

I look forward to exploring more of the city and learning about its rich history.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Coddie:

You and Helmar will be interested to know that we have received five original letters from Miss Helen R. Titus of Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island dealing with the period 1802-04. They are from her grandfather's collection. He, as you will recall is Daniel Rogers of the class of 1804.

I am sending a copy of this note to the Concordy with the thought that they might be interested in seeing this material also. It should, no doubt, be placed in the Library. I hope you will stop over for them and it may be that you would care to draft a note for the Union Alumnus after you have had a chance to see these first hand. At all odds it will be a pleasure to see you again.

With kindest regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Miss Titus:

We have your nice letter of February 8th together with the interesting items from your grandfather's collection. These are most interesting to us for, as you can well appreciate, original material of this nature covering the period 1802-04 is rare indeed.

We are deeply grateful to you for your thoughtfulness in passing these on to Union. After they are reviewed by members of our Committee on Alumni Records, a decision will be made as to where they should be placed for permanent preservation.

Your continuing interest in the College is a source of real assistance to us here. We do hope that it will be possible for you to pay us a visit. Mrs. Wyatt and I would be delighted to have you as our house guest in old South College, the first building erected on the campus, which was completed in 1814.

Looking forward to hearing from you again, I am

Gratefully yours,

Dear Mr. Wyatt:

To-day I am sending to the New York Historical Society some papers that belonged to my grandfather, Daniel Rogers, in connection with his law publication called The New York City Hall Recorder. Among the old papers I found five letters, including a receipt from Union College dated Jan. 10, 1804. The other letters are from his father and brother and some of his own to his father. After Daniel Rogers graduated from Union in 1804, he studied law in the office of Platt & Breese at Whitesborough. (I think)
My grandfather had a difficult time because he was one of a large family and had very little money to pay his way through college. See the letter of his father's dated 1804.

Most of these letters are addressed to his college and are related to his studies in a law office. I hope you will like them as a record of history in the years 1802 and 1804. Trusting they will be acceptable.

I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Helen R. Titus

Dear Mr. Wyatt,

Today I came across your letter with other papers from Union College. I’ve filled out the Munici Record to the best of my ability, but I’m also enclosing a short record of my grandfather’s life and work. My grandfather lived and died before my mother was married. My mother died when I was about four years old. So what I know about him is from the papers that have been left by my people. I am proud of my grandfather and that is the reason I want to place them where they will be preserved. I am eighty years old and the last member of my immediate family living.

I live in the old house ahead of my grand-father Titus with an only nephew, Herbert T. Mahan, his wife and two grown sons. He still owns my grand-father Rogers' house that he had built in 1826.

My mother wrote poetry and kept a diary during the old whaling days and I'm trying to look over her papers also for the town historian. You can readily understand this is not so easy for me.

I want to thank you for your interest and I also appreciate the president and librarian for their cooperation. Thank you for your invitation to call at Union. Perhaps you may be able to call on me sometime in the future. With kindest regards,

Sincerely yours,

Helen R. Titus

My dear Miss Titus:

Thank you for your kind letter of April 16 together with the Alumni Record Sheet for your grandfather. We are delighted to have this material, and I know that it will mean much to Mr. Joseph R. Brown, Jr., of our class of 1903 who has charge of historical records.

Having been born and raised on Long Island, I know your area well. As a child, I resided briefly at Huntington before moving to Hempstead.

Sincerely yours,

Frederic A. Wyatt

Daniel Rogers was one of thirteen children born Feb. 17th 1789. His father was William Rogers and his mother Jane Whittle of Proton Conn. All the children were born in New London and later the family moved to Hudson New York. Daniel Rogers' family trace their ancestry to James Rogers who sailed from England Nov. 15th 1635 at the age of twenty years. From good authority it is stated that James Rogers was the descendant of John Rogers the Martyr.

Daniel Rogers attended Union College in Schenectady and graduated in 1804 receiving his degree of Bachelor of Laws. He commenced his clerkship as a student of law in the office of Platt & Breeze, Whitestown, N.Y., July 12th 1804. August 11th 1807 after taking an examination he was appointed Attorney of Law, the certificate authorizing him to practice in the Supreme Court of the State. Feb 15th 1811 he was appointed by the Supreme Court of the State as Counselor of Law. June 1817 he was appointed by the Court of Chancery as Solicitor, and in May 1823 he was made a Counselor by the Court of Chancery. I think Daniel Rogers taught school to add to his income. The letters his father wrote to him indicate that Daniel Rogers had a struggle to pay his way. Daniel Rogers saved all his letters, legal papers, and writings.
After graduating and serving his clerkship, he practiced law in Cheektowaga, New York.
He finally went to St. Paul where he had an address at Cedar Street. He published the New York City Hall Recorder, the first law journal on criminal law published in the United States. The plan which the editor adopted was original; he endeavored to combine moral truth with legal principles and was in the language adapted to the capacity of every citizen.
This was a monthly publication. This was an important work and eminent men recommended it to the public.

Below are some of the names.

His Excellency Daniel D. Tompkins, Vice Pres of United States

Hon. Wm. W. Van Buren, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court
Attorney General

Martin Van Buren

Richard Riker

John W. Maxwell Esq.

Johannes Cuyler Hoffman

David B. Ogden

Thomas Eldred Emmet Tatters

The publications of the City Hall Recorder were published in book form and there are some of the works in the New York Public Library and the New York Bar Association Building.

Dear Mr. Van de Car:

Thank you so much for sending me the unfinished history of Union College by President Du jour Ryan Ray. I'm reading it and I find it most interesting. You have reason to be proud of Union College as I am, that my grandfather graduated from the institution in 1804.

Thank you for your invitation to visit Union and appreciate your kindness in sending me the history. I remain,

Sincerely yours,

He was a member of the Adelphic Society.

Daniel Rogers and William Seymour came to the village in 1802. Mr. Seymour is mentioned at length as one of the Common Pleas judges, while little is known of Mr. Roger's antecedents or professional attainments. He was for a time partner with Mr. LeRoy, but afterward removed to New York, where he published the "City Hall Recorder."
