The Orator at the Patrons' Day Exercises.

The Madisoniensis, the Colgate weekly, contains in its last issue a picture of President Raymond and the full text of the oration delivered by him before the faculty and students of Colgate University on Patrons' Day, April 25. The address was on "The Mission of the American College." Below are some extracts from the address:

"In this address I do not propose to dwell upon the importance of higher education in general. The worth of broad knowledge, of trained powers of thought, of cultured sympathies and refined sensibilities needs no emphasis in the company of the educated. The first mission of the college is to develop life—life which is more than meat; to unfold those capacities and powers which clothe human nature with dignity and honor. The great end of life is its own increase, more life, abundant life, just as the prophecy of the blade is the full corn in the ear. The educated man inherits this promise of life itself and is blessed with keener vision, with broader sympathies, with deeper experiences. This liberty of life is the birthright of humanity. When Channing said 'He is to be educated because he is a man and not because he is to make shoes and nails and pins,' he gave forcible expression to the underlying principles of all educational work. Its value is not to be estimated by the standards of gross utilitarianism but by its influence upon man himself. Because the life is more than meat its own expansion and enrichment is the supreme good. Not until we appreciate this reflex influence of quickened intelligence, this ennobling of essential manhood, can we understand the priceless value of what is called 'a liberal education.'"

"The aim of the college is therefore primarily the culture of individual life, the development of the man in all that is essentially worthy, and to this end the college must offer young manhood ambitious to make the most of life the ministry of the best thoughts, the noblest ideals, the purest sentiments the most refined sympathies. But the development of the individual has an end beyond his own enrichment, as no man liveth to himself. The influence of education must reach beyond the culture of the individual soul, beyond the charmed circle of scholarly tastes and satisfaction and touch those larger interests of the community and of humanity upon which the progress of civilization depends. If education does not do this then it is but the development of a culture, an intellectual aristocracy, self-satisfied in its enjoyment of exclusive privileges which like every other aristocracy is hostile to the general good."

"If the American College has any distinctive mission it is determined by the conditions and aims of our national life, for the college must ever be the servant of the state. This is indeed fundamental to a true conception of its broader work. It is not an independent institution existing for its own sake nor for the sake of science or of culture in the abstract, but an integral part of the nation, identified with its interests and charged with its welfare. This connection is not determined by statute for it is vital rather than legal. It is not determined by state patronage for the true American College is as much a private enterprise as is any other corporation."

"Now the first condition of good government is the ability and character of the governing class. In popular government the governing class is the numerical majority of the citizens. Whatever arbitrary power may be assumed and exercised for a time by individuals and factions, ultimately the people assert their authority and the rule of the majority is not only the theory but the fundamental fact of our national life. This at least has been established by our history of more than a hundred years, and it indicates the direction and aim of the service which the college is to render the state.”

“It remains for us now to indicate some of the specific lines of influence which the college must follow in its general mission to American citizens.

First of all the curriculum of studies should include subjects which are concerned not only indirectly but directly with governmental questions. I indicated at the beginning the general influence of education in enlarging the horizon of life by developing the mind, training the faculties, increasing knowledge, so that one acquires ability to take broad and comprehensive views. This is essential to the training of the citizen and puts practical emphasis upon the general disciplinary and culture studies of the regular college course, and we need not be surprised that some regard it as all sufficient. Doubtless it is more important than any specific line of instruction in public affairs, for without intellectual grasp and broad sympathies the mere technicalities of instruction are shorn of much of their value; but given the general education, specific instruction is needed for highest efficiency. These two terms, education and instruction are enough in themselves perhaps to define the distinction which we wish to make. While the one suggests the unfolding of innate powers the other suggests the informing of the mind. While the one develops ability the other seeks to direct ability to practical ends. The training of the citizen calls for the use of both of these preparatory means for usefulness. We therefore claim a place in the college curriculum for the subjects directly connected with civic duties and the science of government. This means more than the introduction of a course in so-called practical politics, although such a course may well be included, but beyond this it demands a study of sociology, economics, and in other broad outlines at least constitutional history and international law, and I am inclined to add diplomatic and consular duties. Knowledge of all these subjects is essential to the discharge of the highest functions of citizen-ship, especially on the part of those who by reason of superior advantages are fitted for leadership in their several communities, moulding the thoughts and guiding the energies of others in civil and social affairs. We would have these subjects taught in every college, not to a group of specialists in political science but as a part of the training which the college offers to all its students in the fulfillment of its mission to the state. There is one subject which I have not mentioned but which is perhaps the most important of all when rightly taught, history. When this is treated as it is in some colleges as the story of human progress the history of civilization, in fact, showing the introduction and gradual unfolding of governmental and economic principles, it becomes in itself a liberal education in the rights and duties, the limitation and prerogatives of modern citizenship.”

“Closely allied with this spirit of democracy, as fundamental to manly character, is the sense of honor which indicates a further duty to the American College. The tendency of a materialistic age is toward the depreciation of spiritual qualities. Visible, tangible, sensuous success is the controlling ambition. ‘The sense of honor’ as Addison says, ‘is so fine and delicate a nature that it is only to be meet with in minds which are naturally noble or in such as have been cultivated by great examples or a refined education.’ The school of honor is not the market place nor the battlefield but the environment of great thoughts and noble characters. It is the product of reverence, of the spirit of worship as Emerson has taught. ‘Honor exists for him who always recognizes the neighborhood of the great, always feels himself in the presence of high causes.’ The college as the conservator of honor must quicken it by the steady influence of its own high ideals and exalted life. This suggests the influence not of books so much as of men, the atmosphere of strong personality, the touch of noble character.”

Ex-Captain Gould of Yale, has been secured to coach Amherst’s football team next season.
A LETTER FROM PROF. OPDYKE.

Knowing the general interest of Union men in Prof. Opdyke, who is now on leave, the editors are glad to be able to publish the following letter descriptive of a trip from Zürich toward Rome, at Eastertime:

ON BOARD THE ST. GOTTHARD TRAIN, March 15, 1902.

DEAR—

You may be interested to know that I am definitely settled now at the University of Zürich for the rest of my stay in Europe. I am sorry for other towns and universities, but Prof. Weber says that I may start my arbeit when the spring semester opens. This definitely stops my notion of favoring other communities with my presence. All fooling aside, this means that I am so relieved that I wouldn't go to work again at the bottom of another prof's ladder for two and twenty fats. And so I am celebrating by a little trip into Italy.

The train skirted along the east bank of the Lake of Uri, or the lower arm of Lake Lucerne, and the hills look like the Hudson Highlands, with every now and then a snow peak through a gap. I wanted to get out at Fluelen and go up to Altdorf. Maybe I shall on my way back. Then we seemed to climb a mountain gorge. Very snowy, ragged peaks on either side that threatened to break off at any moment. You know about the curved tunnels and zig-zags, to say nothing of the great tunnel of St. Gotthard. Well, the biggest thing is the speed the train keeps up all the way through. Now we are coasting down toward Chiasso, on the frontier, where we pile out with our baggage.

A couple of cars back there is a large crowd in the third class coach, spreading out luxuriously on both sides of the corridor. There a company of jolly, fat, fur-coated, roly-poly old men with long white beards or gnarled mustaches, are going down to Monte Carlo I guess, to grow young again.

Over the border now, and back in the train again. The stylish Italian officers looked in my waistcoat for cigars. At first I thought he wanted me to give him one to smoke. It is always safer not to understand anything disagreeable that people say to you.

I shall have to try to speak French now; and try as I will, I shall talk German, "Haben sie ein Viertel? Je veux nach—aller."

Sunday—I am pushing on to Florence this afternoon, rolling along the fertile plains of Lombardy. Think of the countless hordes of men who have swarmed up and down this very plain! Gauls, Romans, Germans, Huns, Vandals, Goths—and the steady tramp northward of the legions, with Roman laws and gods for all of Western Europe.

The plain continues, not a curve in the track and Pavia half a mile from it. Alongside the river's broad beds of gravel—sandy white, threaded by the bluest of blue ribbons. Overhead a warm blue sky, with a sort of brown haze on the horizon. We are entering the Apennines now and night is shutting down.

"Bagno della Porella"—The moon is shining and we are right in the midst of the hills. They look like the Adirondacks, big boulder-like, quiet, with the tops in a soft mantle of mist beneath the moonshine. There is even the strong, deep, steady music of a waterfall to complete the likeness of the situation to that near Phillips Lock on the Black R. canal where we snuggled right up close to the bare breast of the grave, serene, mountain and were lulled to gentle sleep by the splashing waters of the spill-way.

Ten minutes stop. "A bordo, a bordo," down hill we're going now and the brakes creak under us. Inside the fat man opposite is snoring in "les quatre langues." On my right a round lay-brother to a monk is smoking a fat cigar in a pleasant slumber. He had with his supper a delicate wicker-covered flask of wine and is now dreaming of next year's vintage.

Out of the mountains, past Pistoje, past Prato Proto. In fifteen minutes more, Firenze! Ever sincerely,

H. O.

THE RUTGERS-UNION MEET.

The track meet between Rutgers and Union will come off at Ridgefield in Albany on Saturday, May 10. Ridgefield has been put in first class condition for the meet. Coach Thompson is rapidly bringing his team into shape. The preliminary trials for the meet were run off this week on the college oval and the men showed the effects of Coach Thompson's training.

Among the men who will probably make up the team are:

Sprints—Rooney, Law; Harris, '04; Griswold, '03. Hurdles—Griffith, '02; Raymond, '03; Heath, '04; Olmsted, '04. Distances—Oulac, '02; Parker, '03; Benning, '04; Hoadley, '02. Weights—Finegan, '02; Patton, '05; Becker, '05; Cleghorn, Law. Jumps—Pearce, '03; Rutledge, '04; Heath, '04; Lawing, '04; Patton, '05. Pole vault—Raymond, '05; Arms, '05.
THE FOOT BALL SCHEDULE.

Below is given the foot ball schedule for the season of 1902 as it stands at present. Manager Gould is to be congratulated on the number of good games secured. He is still arranging dates for further games. This schedule is incomplete and of course, subject to change:

Oct. 4. — Cornell at Ithaca.
Oct. 11. — Amherst at Amherst.
Oct. 18. — Rochester at Schenectady.
Oct. 25. — LaPuate at Schenectady.
Nov. 1. — Lehigh at Schenectady.
Nov. 8. — West Point at West Point.
Nov. 15. — Vermont at Burlington.
Nov. 22. — N. Y. Univ. at N. Y.

R. P. I. vs. UNION.

Game Lost to Trojans.

Poor batting tells the story of the defeat by R. P. I. With a substitute outfield and a crippled infield Union held R. P. I. down until the fatal ninth. Had Mahar had good consistent support he would have won his game handily. This game should stimulate the batting practice as with proper batting the game would have been won.

R. P. I. took the lead in the second and third innings scoring once in each inning. The fourth was Union’s inning. Griswold hit, Grout sacrificed, M. Devoe drove out a long hit for two bags, Griswold scoring. Odwell brought M. Devoe in on a sacrifice. Bradley scored a two bagger, stole third, scored on Mahar’s hit.

In the eighth inning with three men on bases, no outs, Mahar pitched good ball, striking one man out and the other two flying out. The game was won by a two-base hit by Wirth, the R. P. I. catcher. N. Devoe pitched two innings when he was badly hurt by a pitched ball which struck him on the head. He pluckily tried to pitch the next inning but was too dizzy and was retired to the bench.

THE BASE BALL TEAM.

The western trip of the base ball team scheduled for May 30 and 31 when Union was to have played Hobart and Rochester, respectively, has been abandoned on account of the disbanning of Hobart’s team. Manager Bloch has arranged that the game with the General Electric Test should be played May 30 instead of May 10 on account of the track meet with Rutgers. A game has also been arranged with R. P. I. for May 31 to be played at Albany.
THE CONCORDIENSIS.

R. C. Yates, '02, and Parker, '03, were at Poughkeepsie on Patrons' Day.

Shaw, '02, has been called home on account of the serious illness of his mother.

Parsons, '02, has recovered from an attack of typhoid fever and is making recitations.

The senior class appeared for the first time on Monday morning in caps and gowns.

The game with Colgate scheduled for last Saturday had to be called off on account of rain.

The trials for the junior and sophomore oratoricals was held in the chapel on Thursday evening.

The Chi Psi convention will be held under the auspices of the Union chapter on May 14, 15 and 16.

Samuel D. Palmer, '04, has been selected as leader of the Mandolin club for next year, and the mandolin music for the Commencement concert will consequently be under his direction.

The election of an assistant football manager will occur on Monday morning. The candidates from the sophomore class who have registered for this position are Sherrill, Cool and Guardenier.

Prof. Ashmore was present at the meeting held in New York on Thursday and Friday of the managing committee of the American school of classical studies at Rome and the American school of classical studies at Athens.

Rutledge, '04, had the misfortune to fall upon his arm breaking it just above the wrist while high-jumping on the track on Monday afternoon. He is now confined to his room. His loss will be felt by the track team for he was one of the best high jumpers for the Rutgers meet on Saturday.

The trustees of the college at their meeting held recently accepted the gift of $40,000 which Mr. Andrew Carnegie made for the remodeling of Nott Memorial Hall into a library. The Hon. Judson S. Landon and Silas B. Brownell, '52, were appointed a committee to prepare acknowledgments. Another committee was chosen to settle upon the details for the completion of the building. It is expected that the work will be begun soon.

THE ALUMNI COLUMN.

Interesting News About Union Graduates.

Will any interested alumni of '82, '87, '92, '97 and '99 kindly communicate with the Editor-in-Chief? The Concordiensis desires to do everything in its power to further interest in the approaching commencement reunions.

59.—The Rev. George Martin Wiley who died of arterial sclerosis on April 15 at his home West Hebron, N. Y., was born at Putnam, N. Y., in 1830. He was graduated from Union College under Dr. Nott in 1859, and from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1862. He entered the ministry of the United Presbyterian church and his first pastorate was at Ryegate, Vt., where he remained five years. In 1868 he was called to the United Presbyterian church of West Hebron. This pastorate continued through more than thirty-three years of active service to October 28, 1901, when he offered his resignation. He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society.

99.—Harrison K. Wright who is well-known in this vicinity has recently been ordained by the Elizabeth (N. J.) Presbytery and been granted a license for the ministry. Mr. Wright was the cause of a good deal of discussion during his examination before the presbytery because of the position he took in regard to the characters of Adam and Eve. Mr. Wright was one of the honor men in his class, receiving a Phi Beta Kappa key and several essay prizes upon his graduation. He was also a member of the 'varsity track team while in college. Mr. Wright will be sent to Corea as a missionary, a field of his own choosing.

Hamilton has been admitted to the N. Y. S. I. A. U. St. Lawrence University has also joined the league.
In this issue is given the list of the members in the classes of 1872 and 1877. The class of 1872 will celebrate its thirtieth anniversary and the class of 1877 its twenty-fifth in June. Both of these classes were for some reason small, but the lists contain many names that have since become well-known in various walks of life.

Caps The senior class is to be congratulated for the position they have taken in regard to the wearing of caps and gowns. It was decided by the class at a meeting held in the winter term that the class would wear caps and gowns at the first college meeting in May. This the class as a whole has done except on the part of three or four individuals. The dress distinguishes the seniors from the other classes and is a dignified and scholarly-appearing apparel. It only remains for each man in the class to be consistent and wear the dress while on the hill from now on through commencement week.

The Senior Class Book. The committee having in charge the getting up and publishing of the Senior Class Book have been at work for some time trying to ascertain where they could publish the most novel and best class book. Late developments have shown that there is a great lack of spirit among many men in the class who will not agree to take books and not from any financial reason either. This lack of spirit in 1902 is very unusual as the class has always been noted for the splendid support given to class enterprises as well as college organizations. So far only about twenty-five men out of forty have agreed to take books. What is the matter with these fifteen men? A man doesn't graduate but once with Union and it seems as if he certainly would wish to own a copy of the class book gotten out upon that occasion. The committee finds that it costs more to get out twenty-five books than it would forty, for this they are not responsible. It was thought best, in order to reduce the cost of the book as much as possible, to omit the pictures of the faculty. To this a few men seriously objected and cancelled their orders should this be done.

To this it may be said that the committee's object was to make the book as distinctly a class book as possible, and to this end they proposed to omit the faculty pictures and substitute some valuable statistics and questions much in vogue in other college class books. And in reference to the faculty pictures it will be found upon examination that very few senior classes at other colleges put in the faculty pictures. The idea is distinctly passé. Wake up seniors, are you going to let your class spirit die out at a time when it should be at its best?

Seven thousand one hundred dollars has been pledged by the students of Brown University for a new building.

STOP DAT A-PUSSIN' DAR BEHIND!
Ah'm a moke from Louzzieann,
An' mah skin's as brack as crows';
Mah honey's Mary Ann,
An' ah doan care who knows.
Say, yeh might 'chome me on gladin',
When dat win' is at our back.
We jes' give deh cops de sack,
When dat win' is at our back.
O stop dat a-pussin' dar behind!

CHORUS.—To decision of the tune in chorus.
O stop dat a-pussin' dar behide!
O stop dat a-pussin' dar behide!
O stop dat a-pussin' dar behide!
An' ef everybody knows
Happy niggers! Dreez see done!
O stop dat a-pussin' dar behide!

Suppose that instead of going to the tailor this spring for a Suit you try one of our ready-to-wear suits. You will find it will fit better, wear longer, keep its shape, and be in better style and taste than anything the average tailor can make to your measure. The suit will cost you about one-half of what the tailor would charge. These high-grade suits come from such manufacturers as Rogers, Peet & Co., Hart, Schaffner & Marx, and other makers of reliable clothing. Come in and look at our Spring Suits and Top Coats.
