Warford, James
From: Cambridge, N.Y.
Last residence: Cambridge, N.Y.

War 1812
No record found
DIED—At Saratoga Springs, on the 21st inst. James P. Warford, Esq., son of the late Rev. John Warford, of this town, Aet. 31 years. The deceased set out for Ogdensburg some weeks since on a journey for his health, and after traveling thro' the Western part of the state came to Ballston Springs, where he remained several days. On the 20th he rode in his chaise to Saratoga, intending on the following day to have pursued his journey to this place; but alas! his days were numbered and too soon finished for the accomplishment of his purposes. On Friday about one o'clock P. M. he resigned the fleeting scenes of a world of sorrow, for one of joy and peace, "where seraphs gather immortality." On Saturday his remains were conducted to this town, attended by the relatives and a number of respectable citizens of this village, and on Sunday following were consigned to the grave. His relatives do not sustain their loss alone; community is deprived of a man of brilliant talents, sound mind, sober habits, pure morality, universal benevolence and unexampled integrity. Science mourns the fall of the firmest pillar in the temple, and the bar is bereft of one of its brightest ornaments. "This all who knew him know," and all who shall hereafter be made acquainted with his virtues "will feel."

The Northern Post
Salem, N. Y.
Aug. 27, 1812. (Thurs.)
CLASS OF 1803

JAMES WARFORD

Son of Rev. John and Mrs. Margaret (Piper) (Kirkpatrick) Warford.

Prepared for college at Washington Academy, Salem, N.Y.
Became a lawyer and settled in Ogdensburg and died there on August 21, 1812.

Brother of John Warford, Class of 1800
Samuel E. Warford, Class of 1804.

History of Washington County, N. Y.  p. 66
The Gibson Papers
Compiled by William H. Hill
Forst Edward, N. Y.
1932

James P. Warford was admitted to the St. Lawrence county bar in 1807.