1.822 TEN EYCK GANSEVCORT.

Died: At Bath, Steuben Co., on the 24th ult., Loctor Ten Eyck Gansevoort, aged 39 years. Doct. Gansevoort was the youngest son of the late Conrad Gansevoort, of this city.-

Daily Albany Argus, Oct. 3, 1842.

TEN EYCK GANSEVOORT, 122

Was the youngest son of Conrad Gansevoort, of Albany. He was born however, in Minden, Montgomery Co., N. Y., on the 5th of January, 1803. He was educated at Union College, and graduated with some distinction as a scholar, in 1822. He presently commenced the study of medicine in the office of Dr. Chas. D. Townsend, and was graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in 1825. For a number of years he pursued his profession in this city, nd became a member of this society. Subsequently he removed to Bath, in the county of Steuben, where he arose to a prominent rank as a physician and surgeon; throughout the country his services were widely sought. As an operator in surgery he had a considerable degree of skill. Dr. Gansevoort had a well balanced mind, a correct judgment, and a good knowledge of medical literature. There was no rashness, or love of novelty in him and he was considered emphatically a safe and reliable practitioner. But there is nothing so attractive in the physical labors, mental anxieties, and professional responsibilities of a physician as to lead men willingly to assume them. Necessity is the strongest motive to such duties. In a new and mountainous county great fatigue and exposure is inseparable from the practice of medicine, and possessed of 2 comfortable fortune, Dr. Gansevoort very naturally began to limit his professional duties to the circle of his relatives and friends; meanwhile he became largely interested in mercantile and other business operations. Thus with health hitherto uninterrupted, and every thing around him by which to make his life useful and desirable, in September, 1842, he was attacked with typus fever; the disease advanced to a fatal termination. He had not quite completed his fortieth year.

From: Munsell's Annals of Albany Vol. 9, p. 111

TEN EYCK GANSEVOORT, 1922, of Albany, N.Y., was a member of the Philomathean Society. (Died: 1842)

Philomathean Catalogue 1830

See Carter Davidson Folder for paper on Herman Melville and Union College presented to Spring, 1964 meeting of Schenectady Historical Society.

CLASS OF 1822

TEN EYCK GANSEVOORT

In the list of physicians of Bath is one mame that has been prominent in the history of the State for many generations--that of Gansevoort. Teh Eyck Gansevoort was born in Montgomery County, in 1803, a son of Conrad Gansevoort of Albany and a relative of Col. Peter Gansevoort of Revolutionary fame.

He was educated at Union College, graduated in medicine at Philadelphia in 1825, and came to Bath the same year. He married Helen R. Lyon, a sister of Moses Lyon, in 1828, --a woman of culture and refinement, one of Bath's worthies. They had four children--Conrad G., of this village, and Mrs. B. F. Angel, of Geneseo, being the only ones living. The Doctor was in affluent circumstances, kind to the poor, universally esteemed as a citizen, and was one of the leading surgeons of his day. He and Dr. Rogers were the surgeons in the celebrated Morgan case. He died in Bath in 1842, in the prime of life, being but 39 years of age.

The Centennial of Bath Nora Hull, Editor. 1893. p. 203

Gansevoort, Ten Eyck M.D.

Class of 1822

From "Ancestry and Descendants of John Roseboom and Jesse Johnson". Page 45.

Dr. Ten Eyck Gansewoort, son of Conrad Gansevoort and Elizabeth Roseboom, was born in the town of Minden, N.Y., January 5 1803. He graduated with distinction from Union College in 1822 and afterwards at the Medical College in Philadelphia. In 1824, he settled in Bath, N.Y. and practised with success. He subsequently engaged extensively in mercantile pursuits. Liberality and generosity were marked traits of this upright man, kind and benovelent neighbor and devoted husband, father and friend. He died suddenly in Bath, September, 25 1842, aged 39.

He married October 14 1829, Helen Reynette Lyon, daughter of Moses Lyon and Elizabeth Arnett. She was born in Prattsburg, N.Y., February 4 1811 and died near Wilson, N.C., while returning from Florida, April 21 1880, aged 69. Children: Catherine Elizabeth(b. August 1 1833 Conrad(b. Jan. B 1836. Mary Woods(b May 19 1839. Ten Eyck(b. Aug. 18 1842 d. Oct. 8 1867) CLASS OF 1822

TEN EYCK GANSEVOORT

Son of Conrad Gansevoort and Elizabeth Roseboom, was born in the town of Minden, N. Y., June 5, 1803.

He graduated with distinction from Union College in 1822, and afterwards at the Medical College in Philadelphia. In 1824 he settled in Bath, N. Y., and practiced with success. He subsequently engaged extensively in mercantile pursuits. Liberality and generosity were marked traits of this upright man, kind and benevolent neighbor, and devoted husband, father and friend.

He died suddenly in Bath, September 25, 1842, aged 39.

He married October 14, 1828, Helen Reynette Lyon, daughter of Moses Lyon and Elizabeth Arnett. She was born in Prattsburg, N. Y., February 4, 1811, and died near Wilson, N. C., while returning from Florida, April 21, 1880, aged 69.

Children:-

 Catherine Elizabeth-born Aug.1,1833;m. Duncan S.Magee; Benjamin F. Angell
Conrad-born Jan.6,1836; m. Cornelia M. Fenn
Mary Woods-born May 19,1839;m. John N. Hungerford
Ten Eyck-born Aug.18,1842; died Oct.8,1867,aged 25.

FROM Brief History of the Ancestors and Descendants of John Roseboom and Jesse Johnston p. 45 Cherry Valley CLASS OF 1822

TEN EYCK GANSEVOORT

Was the youngest son of Conrad Gansevoort, of Albany. He was born, however, in Minden, Montgomery County, N. Y., on the 5th of January, 1803. He was educated at Union College, and graduated with some distinction as a schalar, in 1822. He presently commenced the study of medicine in the office of Dr. Charles D. Townsend, and was graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in 1825. For a number of years he pursued his profession in this city, and became a member of thes Society. Subsequently he removed to Bath, in the county of Steuben, where he rose to a prominent rank as a physician and surgeon; throughout thecounty his services were widely sought. As an operator in surgery he had a considerable degree of skill. Dr. Gansevoort had a well balanced mind, correct judgment, and a good knowledge of medical literature. There was no rashness, or love of novelty in him, and he was considered emphatically safe and reliable practitioner. But there is nothing so attractive in the physical labors, mental anzieties, and professional responsibilities of a physician as to lead men willingly to assume them. Necessity is the strongest motive to such duties. In a new and mountianous country,. great fatigue and exposure are inseparable from the practice of medicine; and possessed of a comfortable fortune, Dr. Gansevoort very naturally began to limit his professional duties to the circle of his relatives and friends; meanwhile he became largely interested in mercantile and other business operations. Thus, with health hitherto uninterrupted, and everything around him by which to make his life useful and desirable, in September, 1843, he was attacked with Typhus fever; the disease advanced to a fatal termination. He had not quite completed his fortieth vear . the

A member of the Steuben county bar says of him: "By liberality and generosity of his conduct towards all with whom he had associations, and which were marked traits of his character; by his probity as a citizen, the simplicity of his manners, his kindness of heart and many amiable virtues, Dr. Gansevoort won the regard of all who knew him."

FROM Annals of the Med. Soc. of the County of Albany, 1806-1851.

Sylvester D. Willard, M. D.

J. Munsell

Albany

1864.