AARON D. LANE

In January, 1820, Rev. Aaron D. Lane passed a Sabbath in Waterloo, N. Y. and preached to the people (Presbyterian Church) who desired him to remain. As soon as he had completed engagements with the Missionary Association, he returned to Waterloo and in July entered upon the stated supply of the pulpit. Responding to a call to become pastor of the congregation, unanimously given, he, on March 21, 1821, was ordained pastor, over the church by the Presbytery of Geneva. Mr. Lane came opportunely, and encouraged the church. Kind, self-sacrificing, and eloquent, he secured the confidence of the community and the affection of this church.

Mr. Lane, now in his 80th year (1876) was installed in 1821, and served the church till the autumn of 1835, when he resigned from physical inability to continue his labors. As evidence of his favor among the people, during a single year 116 persons were added to the church, 93 of whom made profession on the same day.
