CORNELIUS V. S. KANE.

Died--In this city, on Friday evening, Sept. 8, of consumption, Cornelius V. S. Kane, of this city.

New York Times, Sept. 11, 1854.

We regret to learn of the recent death of C. V. S. Kane, Esq., counsellor-at-law, of this city. He was the son of Elias Kane, a distinguished merchant "in the olden time" of the settlement of the Mohawk Valley, and a brother of Oliver Kane, whose descendants occupy a prominent position in society. Mr. Kane's mother was a Van Schelleynne, of Albany, a lady of an old Dutch family.

The deceased held a high position at the bar of this State, and enjoyed the universal respect of the profession. He was at one time the partner of Col. John B. Van Schaick, of Albany, one of the most accomplished men of his day--and afterwards of Charles Clinton, Esq., the son of Gov. Clinton. Mr. Kane was a devoted son, an affectionate brother, and as a man was noted for his amiable, polished and sincere manners. N.Y. Eve. Post.
