CLASS OF 1826

THOMAS J. MARVIN

First Judge(Court of Common Pleas) Thomas J. Marvin was the son of William Marvin, a merchant and hotel keeper at East Line in the town of Malta, where he was born in June, 1803. His grandfather, Dennis Marvin, was one of the first settlers of the town, a few years prior to the Revolution. He was educated at the old Ballston Academy and at Union College, graduating in the class of 1826; and studied law with William L. F. Warren(Union 1814), at Saratoga Springs, and was admitted to the bar of Common Pleas in August, 1829. In due time he was admitted first as an attorney and then as a counselor in the Supreme Court, and Solicitor in Chancery. In 1836, he was appointed by Gov. Marcy to be a judge of Common Pleas, and two years later he was promoted to the presiding judge's seat, his commission dating from February 13; and held the office until 1847, when it was abolished by the adoption of the new constitution. Judge Marvin was a man of quick perceptions and was deeply read in the law. He was quick to see the point and to act upon it. When he saw that the strict construction of the law led to a certain end, though it might clash with the public demands or his own private wishes, he fearlessly did his duty. We have seen an instance in this in the manner in which he disposed of the second indictment against the notorious Rynders. He was a joint proprietor in the United States hotel, Saratoga Springs from 1832, and in 1842 he entered into partnership with his brother, Hon. James M. Marvin in the management of that house, which continued until his death December 29, 1852, in the fiftieth year of his age. He was supervisor of Saratoga Springs in 1851-2.

AN oil painting of Mrs. Thomas J. Marvin, mother of Mrs. William A. Sackett, has been presented to Bethesda Parish House and hangs in one of the double living rooms used there by various local organizations.

The presentation was made recently by Mr. and Mrs. Hiram C. Todd, who recently sold their Franklin Square house, the former home of Mrs. Sackett. Mrs. Marvin was the former Mrs. Harriet Fraser who on Feb. 8, 1837 was married to Mr. Marvin.

The companion portrait Mr. and Mrs. Todd have presented to Union College of which Mr. Todd has long been president of the board of trustees, this gift in recognition of the fact that Mr. Marvin was one of the early students of Union College who rose to considerable distinction, after graduation from Union. He was admitted to the bar in 1828, and elected to the Assembly of the State of New York in 1833. Later he served as County Judge, and was former postmaster of Saratoga Springs for two terms.

With his brother, James Madison Marvin, he was proprietor of the first United States Hotel from 1842 to 1852, the year of Thomas Marvin's death. The Marvin brothers were managers of the historic United States Hotel which was destroyed by fire June 18, 1865.

1826
Thomas J. and James M. Marvin also established the Bank of Saratoga Springs in 1841.

Dear Charlie:

It is good to know that you are at work on your memoirs and that you intend to give special attention to gifts to the College made by women.

The gift to the College which was made by my dear old friend, Mrs. Sackett, was under her Will in which she bequeathed one-fourth of the residue of her estate to the College. So you may have the exact language of the bequest, I quote from her Will:

"FOURTEENTH: * * * * *

"5th. * * * * *

"One quarter thereof to the Trustees of Union College of Schenectady, New York, as an endowment to be known as the Thomas J. Marvin Fund, which is to be invested and reinvested and the income used by the President of said College in assisting worthy and needy students of said college."

The amount received by the College under this bequest is $74,759.59, and is carried under the title:

"Thomas J. Marvin Student Aid Fund ... $74,759.59
Gift of Mary L. Sackett in memory of her father Thomas J. Marvin,
Class of 1826."

You also may remember that Susan and I presented to the College a portrait of Thomas J. Marvin, which has hung for several years in a conspicuous place in the College dining room.

If you wish to comment on Thomas J. Marvin, I shall be glad to have copied and sent to you his biography as it appeared in the Saratoga County History, which was published several years ago. He was one of the leading citizens of Saratoga Springs, one of the founders of the historic United States Hotel, a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and, I think, a Congressman, but I am not sure, so if you wish to include any statement about him let me know.

Faithfully yours,

Dear Charlie:

In accordance with your request contained in your letter of the 16th inst., I hand you herewith copy of the brief biography of Thomas J. Marvin which appeared in "A History of Saratoga County Printed by the Saratogian in 1899." You will note that I have added to the typed copy a notation that Mr. Marvin served as Postmaster of Saratoga Springs and also in the Assembly of the State of New York. I am clear that he held these two official positions, although they did not appear in the article from the History of Saratoga County.

I have just received a letter from Dr. Davidson bearing the bad news of the shortage of coal at the College, and that a temporary supply of coal has been received from General Electric Company and General Locomotive Company. This is a most distressing item of news. I have cudgelled my brain to find a solution to the problem, but without success, so I suppose all we can do is hope and pray for a cessation of the coal strike.

I hope that you and Dorothy have plenty of coal and everything else to make you happy during these cold winter days.

Faithfully yours,

HCT:lam
