DELOS WHITE.

Died: In Cherry Valley, on the 26th ult., Miss Levantia W. White, daughter of the deceased Dr. Delos White, in the 22d. year of her age.

Daily Albany Argus, April 6, 1842.
Delos White, the father of Hon. Joseph L. White, of the city of New York, had for several years before the death of his father, acquired a reputation in his profession, of nearly equal celebrity. He too had been at the head of one of the departments in the medical college already mentioned (at Fairfield), and on the decease of his senior, was looked upon as almost the only man who could fill the place of his deceased but distinguished ancestor, whom he survived but a few years, having died in 1825.

From Reminiscences
Levi Beardsley
Charles Vinten
New York 1852
Dr. Delos White, although his life was cut short before he had reached the age when men usually attain their greatest prominence, enjoyed a reputation for ability, in surgery especially, little inferior to that of his famous parent, Dr. Joseph White. Beardsley says of him: "Dr. Delos White, had for several years before the death of his father, acquired a reputation in his profession of nearly equal celebrity. He too had been at the head of one of the departments (anatomy) in the medical college, already mentioned, Fairfield Medical College, and on the decease of his senior was looked upon as almost the only man who could fill the place of his deceased but distinguished ancestor, whom he survived but a few years, having died in 1836." An old Ledger, of Delos White's, shows an extent of practice both as regards territory and remuneration, which would seem almost incredible to a country practitioner in these days.

FROM History of Cherry Valley
John Sawyer--Union Class of 1881.
Cherry Valley 1898.