JOHN MARTIN VAN BUREN

He was an earnest and faithful minister and an active worker in the cause of temperance. After giving up his charge at New Lots he devoted his time and the energies of his well trained mind in writing short, but very interesting, articles for the religious press and temperance journals. His life, from the time he entered the ministry of the Church until its close, was an active and useful life. "Mints. Gen. Syn.," 1892, 657.

JOHN M. VAN BUREN

On his return to Washington Van Buren (Martin Van Buren) found a vast accumulation of mail. J. M. Van Buren, a cousin, wrote that he had been teaching since he graduated at Union College in June, when "for the special gratification of the citizens of that Dutch place (Schenectady) I delivered my oration in the Holland, my vernacular language.....At Dr. (Eliphalet) Nott's levee he seemed to take uncommon satisfaction in complimenting the Dutch orator....." He had abandoned pedagogy to study at the Theological Seminary at Auburn. He recalled occasions when Van Buren had helped him; and told of having an essay in the July number of the North American Quarterly. The subscription, Yours affectionately, and the address, Honored and Respected Friend, charmed; for there was no mistaking the gratitude and sincerity of the seminarian, who had lost his parents at an early age, and had been brought up by the Hogebooms at Kinderhook. Van Buren advised him to practice law. "You will excuse me for taking the the Ministry instead of Law, my conscience & feelings would not permit me to do otherwise," he explained; and reasoned that since mankind, "generally concede th(e Minis) try to be the most honorable calling, it certainly must be so in the sight of God." Van Buren cherished this letter, and at the bottom noted: "Sent him $30."

"...of Kinderhook...one of that immortal tio (see: Van Sentvord, C. under Classmates)...came from Williams College about the middle of sophomore year, having fled from that institution to shake off an insupportable silly character...notoriety soon followed him...attempts to 'raise a breeze' by his literary labors...only lays himself open to ridicule..."
