Mr. Christopher Y. Lansing left his residence, 103 No. Pearl St., yesterday morning (Wednesday) about ten o'clock, and has been missing since that hour. He has been quite feeble of late, and it is supposed he may have been compelled to seek rest in some house where he was not known, and that he has been unable to make known his name and residence. All persons who may have seen him at any hours yesterday are requested to give information thereof to his family or to any officer of the police, or at police headquarters.—Albany Argus, Jan. 4, 1872.

The anxiety of the family and the many friends of our venerable fellow citizen, Christopher Y. Lansing, were happily relieved last evening by his safe return. It appears from his statement that he took a seat in a Pearl street car going south, and on reaching the foot of Whithall road, he alighted and starting up the walk, soon found himself outside the city limits. A kind hearted farmer happening along offered him a seat in his wagon. With him, Mr. Lansing rode to Clarksville, a village about twelve miles from the city, where he remained all Wednesday night at a hotel. Yesterday morning he rode with another farmer to Feura Bush, Albany County, where he met some gentlemen who perceived that Mr. Lansing was astray, and asked him for his card, which he handed them. These gentlemen procured a conveyance and drove Mr. Lansing to the city, where he arrived last evening and relieved the terrible anxiety of friends. A dozen different parties were out on the different roads looking for Mr. Lansing, all of whom returned last evening, and to their great delight found Mr. Lansing at his home.
